Battleship May Win New Role As Missile Monitor On Great Lakes

THE Navy's billion-dollar, mothballed battleship fleet may get new life in the Nation's air defense system.

Consideration is being given to a plan which would restore a number of one-time dreadnaughts to active service as Missile Monitors on the Great Lakes.

The battleships would be used initially by the North American Air Defense Command.

Once an enemy air attack had been thwarted, the rejuvenated battleships then would be ready to steam to sea to join assault forces in a more conventional role.

Obviously, the Navy must first gain approval for expenditure of millions of dollars to refit the battleships for a new dual-purpose role.

A Navy planner, in an interview with THE JOURNAL, stressed that "we must take advantage of the increased strategic importance of our waterways."

He said that battleships, converted to fast-moving missile platforms, would be extremely difficult targets for attacking planes or missiles.

Initially, the Navy hopes to pull a 45,000 ton Iowa-class battleship out of the Reserve Fleet—the Navy does not have a single BB in active service at present—and "really load it up" with Terrier and Talos missiles.

Objective of the Navy plan is to provide the United States with increased ability

Proficiency Flying Pay Reports Face Deadline; DoD Disclaims New Probe

Fears that a new full-scaled Pentagon inquiry had been launched into the matter of proficiency flying pay were denied by Defense Department officials this week.

THE JOURNAL had been advised by some Service officers that such an investigation had been started with a dual objective.

First, it is a wide open secret at the Pentagon that Secretary of Defense McElroy is concerned about mounting defense costs and wants every item in the fiscal '59 budget closely examined with an eye toward possible savings.

Second, the Pentagon is under orders from the House Appropriations Committee to make new reports on proficiency flying pay before the end of the year.

The Committee, acting on the fiscal '59 budget, declared that for many years it "has seriously questioned the necessity or the practical value of much of the so-called proficiency flying."

In the past, some Members of Congress on numerous occasions have contended that proficiency flying pay should be curtailed for officers who have 20 or more years service and who are not assigned to operational units.

Rumors were circulated at the Pentagon this week that this previously rejected contention was a focal point of a

Powerful Backing Slated For Family Dental Care; Pentagon At Work On "Draft" Measure

The proposed program to provide adequate dental care for military families is slated to receive powerful support. This will come in the face of the critical budget problems that threaten its future.

THE JOURNAL has been told that the American Dental Association's House of Delegates will take forceful action on the lack of family dental care at its meeting in Dallas next month.

Dental Association officials are hopeful the Department of Defense will be able to provide "draft" legislation for consideration at the meeting on 11 November.

The anticipated expression of support from the American Dental Association would parallel the position that has been taken by the American Medical Association.

Budget Bureau, Commenting On Journal Disclosure, Says It Erred On Dual Compensation; Promises Further Study

(Text of Letter, Editorial Comment, Page 10)

THE Budget Bureau, which acts for the President, has taken action to correct an error it made in connection with dual compensation legislation for the Armed Forces.

In what is certainly a rare—if not an unprecedented—statement, the Budget Bureau says it made a mistake in advising the Defense Department and Congress concerning a measure that would ease the current discriminatory ban on Federal employment of retired military personnel.

This is the story of the wayward endorsement:

THE JOURNAL, in the issue of 6 September, reported exclusively that the Navy Department had advised the Capitol that the Budget Bureau would have "no objection" to enactment of a bill similar to HR 13867, sponsored by Rep. Joel T. Broyhill (R-Va.).

Representative Broyhill's bill provides that when not on active duty, "a retired officer of the Armed Forces is not considered to be an officer or employee of the United States or a person holding an office of trust or profit or discharging any official function under, or in connection with, the United States because of his appointment, oath, or status, or any duties or functions performed or pay or allowances received in that capacity."

In a nutshell, Mr. Broyhill's proposal would open opportunities for Federal employment to thousands of persons on the retired rolls and for other thousands now in active service who look forward to continued service to the Government following their retirement.

Mr. Phillip S. Hughes, in a letter to THE JOURNAL, comments on the 6 September article as follows:

"This article correctly stated that, as part of a report on a private relief bill, the Navy Department had submitted to the Congress, with the approval of the Bureau of the Budget, a proposal which would exempt retired military personnel from the operation of the so-called dual compensation and dual employment statutes."

The Budget Bureau official then added: "The purpose of this letter is to advise you that the Bureau of the Budget was in error in approving this proposal and that notification to this effect has been given to the Department of Defense, the House Committee on Armed Services, and the office of Congressman Joel T. Broyhill who introduced the proposal as H. R. 13867."

Although blasting immediate hopes that the Administration would support an all-out attack on dual employment restrictions, which are widely recognized to be outdated, the Budget Bureau does offer the strong prospect of future remedial action.

"The proposal submitted by the Navy Department," said Assistant Director Hughes, "is identical to one which formed a part of the 1958 legislative program of the Department of Defense and which has been under review by this office for some time in conjunction with the consideration of related proposals submitted by other agencies.

"This review," said the Budget Bureau, "will continue with a view to determining the kind of legislation regarding this difficult and complex subject which the Administration can support in the 86th Congress."

Spokesmen for the Eisenhower Administration have told Congress during recent years that current restrictions on Federal employment of retired military personnel discriminate against individuals and deny to the Government the services of many persons with critically needed skills.

THE JOURNAL disclosed in the issue of 27 September how a retired Navy admiral has been forced to forfeit more than $1000 of his retired pay because he took a job as a consultant with the Federal Civil Defense Administration.

This article is one of a number of similar instances which THE JOURNAL has uncovered to point up the inequity of present laws affecting employment of retired military people.

Whatever position the Budget Bureau finally takes, it appears certain that the House Armed Services Committee early next year will resume its inquiry into the "difficult and complex" problem.

Definitive action was not possible during the last session, since Mr. Broyhill's bill was not introduced until the last day.

Simultaneously with the introduction of the bill, the Defense Department was asked for a formal report on the proposal.

This was necessary because the Navy comments on the now retracted Budget Bureau position came on another bill, HR. 12972, sponsored by Mr. Broyhill, which would have affected only Capt. William T. Powell, USN-Ret.

The Navy, with Budget Bureau approval, took the position that the bill appeared to be "no compelling reason why Captain Powell should be given preferential treatment in this respect."

The Navy said it supported instead general legislation on the dual employment situation.

re·li'a·bil'i·ty: Fleet-proved heritage of Crusader III, backed by 41-year Chance Vought tradition

Reliability, like superior speed, altitude and maneuverability, is built into Vought missiles and aircraft. This vital ingredient is the Fleet-proved heritage of Crusader III, Chance Vought's automated all-weather Navy fighter.

Crusader I achieved a major breakthrough when it became the first 1,000-mph-plus fighter to operate from aircraft carriers. This airplane established U. S. and world records... became operational faster than any modern jet in history. In an era of increasing technical complexities, it is proving its reliability aboard Navy carriers in two oceans.

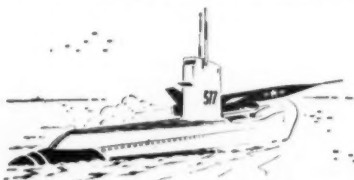

Regulus I became an operational missile as early as 1955. It has proved its reliability with a record of more than 700 flights. Regulus II, carrying on this tradition for reliability, in September accomplished history's first flight of a supersonic missile from a submarine.

Experience gained with Crusader I and the Regulus missiles is the heritage of Crusader III—a heritage backed by 41 years of developing, producing and servicing reliable sea-going weapons.

BoB Writes SecDef

Here is the text of the letter written to Secretary of Defense Neil H. McElroy by the Budget Bureau following THE JOURNAL article on 6 September:

9 September 1958

The Honorable
The Secretary of Defense
Attention: Mr. Frank J. Sherlock
Pentagon
My dear Mr. Secretary:

Through inadvertence, this office formally cleared on August 13, 1958, a Navy Department report on HR 12972, a bill "to authorize the appointment of a civilian position with the Federal Government of Captain William T. Powell, Jr., U.S.N.-Ret., and for other purposes." This bill would waive the so-called dual employment statute on behalf of the named individual. The Navy Department opposed enactment of the bill but indicated it would have no objection to enactment of related general legislation for the consideration of the Committee. This draft was substantially similar to a proposal in your 1958 legislative program which has been pending at the Bureau of the Budget for some months.

Advice with respect to the program item has been delayed pending study of the comments of other interested or affected agencies and receipt and review of related proposals introduced in the Congress or proposed by other agencies. This study and review are being continued. Under these circumstances it is manifest that clearance of the similar proposal as part of the Navy report on HR 12972 represents a mistake on our part which needs to be rectified. Accordingly, it would be appreciated if you would promptly and formally advise the House Armed Services Committee of this fact and request that the record be corrected to indicate that there is at this time no commitment to the relationship to the program of President of general legislation modifying the limitations on the dual employment and dual compensation statutes.

Sincerely yours,
Phillip S. Hughes
Assistant Director
Legislative Reference

The Navy, on 16 September, advised the Armed Services Committee that the Budget Bureau's reported approval of the proposed legislation was "a mistake" and asked that the record be corrected.

Army Emphasizes Training Of Small Units And Their Leaders, Gen. Clarke Reports

FORT MONROE, VA.

THE role of the Army's small units and small unit leaders is receiving special attention at Headquarters of the Continental Army Command.

General Bruce C. Clarke, CONARC Commanding General, told reporters here on 8 October that individual training in the Army is becoming increasingly important "because the individual soldier has more to learn and because more and more responsibility is vested in small units and small unit leaders." For that reason, he said, "we are giving more thought to their training."

CONARC demonstrated a large array of new weapons and equipment designed, General Clarke said, "to improve the lot of the ground combat soldier." They included an automatic foxhole digger, lighter weight flame thrower, hand-held signals, protective clothing, a family of new 7.62 caliber weapons, a lighter weight machine gun, an ultra fast-opening parachute, a simple-to-operate telegraph and many other devices.

Much is being done, General Clarke said, to make the ground combat soldier "more comfortable and more effective." As head of CONARC, General Clarke supervises nearly half of the active Army and is responsible for Army-wide training, including the Reserve and National Guard. He said his command is making an all-out effort to reduce training time and to speed specialist training for what is "rapidly becoming a specialist's Army."

He said the Army's training burden has been lightened by recent Congressional action which permits the weeding out of hard-to-train personnel formerly channeled into the Army through Selective Service.

More details about CONARC's activities will be contained in next week's issue of The Journal.

all in the day of a RAVEN

Resupply — shuttling critical battlefield equipment anywhere, anytime — is only one of many vital duties for the Army H-23D RAVEN. Its brand of multi-mission versatility is essential to Army Aviation's role in a nuclear age that has forgotten the meaning of status quo.

Good natured and rugged, the H-23D can be depended upon for every light helicopter requirement: observation... command recon... evacuation... combat recon... training... communications... liaison... wire laying... and photography, to mention a few. Performance is the key. Performance, high load and space capacity built into a rugged ship.

And now, Hiller has added a 305 hp engine to the same basic ship. The result is the 12E, a three place helicopter with giant capabilities.

Navy "Too Thin," Says Personnel Chief; Manning Level Aim Is "Minimum Adequate"

THE Navy, ordered to trim to 630,000 men by next June, is "too thin," according to VAdm. H. Paige Smith.

At present, the Chief of Naval Personnel said, the Navy plans a manning level of 81% of the wartime personnel complements aboard operational ships. Many ships are below this minimum complement.

Citing Navy studies to determine adequate manning levels for the fleet, Admiral Smith asserted that "we agree 81% is too thin."

At the beginning of the Korean War, he said, the ships were manned at 84% of wartime complement. Later in the war, the level was increased to 90% and, in many instances, to 100%.

Despite its need for more men, Admiral Smith said, no personnel increase has been requested by the Navy in the 1960 budget. As a result of pressure from both the Administration and Congress, he continued, the Navy thought it best to justify "the minimum adequate" in its budget request.

"I personally think it is a little low," Admiral Smith asserted.

In addition to the already low manning rate, the admiral said, other new Naval developments may call for increased personnel. The coming Polaris submarines, for example, will require two crews to remain in constant operation since the human endurance of the crew is not equal to the mechanical endurance of the ships. Other nuclear subs may also require dual crews.

No new forced reductions are anticipated to bring the Navy down to the Fiscal '59 target of 630,000 officers and men, Admiral Smith said. Reductions within officer ranks will be accomplished mainly by reduced input.

RAdm. John Quinn, USN, Deputy Chief, Bureau of Ordnance, and Assistant Chief, Bureau of Ordnance, has been named Chief of the U. S. Naval Mission to Brazil. He will be succeeded by RAdm. Miles H. Hubbard, Commander, Cruiser Division Three, in December.

Capt. Laning To Get New Assignment Following Record Voyage Of Seawolf

Capt. Richard B. Laning, Commanding Officer of the record-breaking atomic submarine, USS Seawolf, will be given a new assignment in January.

The Seawolf skipper donned the insignia of his new rank 6 October, the same date that his ship surfaced 15 miles south of Block Island, Conn., ending an underwater journey of precisely 60 days.

The previous submerged endurance mark was set by the USS Skate last May, under command of Cdr. James P. Calvert, which remained under the water for 31 days, 5½ hours.

The Seawolf, timing her arrival, bobbed to the surface at 11:45 a.m., the exact time that she went under in waters off her home port at New London 7 August.

The history-making ship was greeted by the USS Nautilus, which sent the message "Congratulations and welcome home" by underwater phone shortly before the Seawolf rose to the surface.

trip—she logged 15,700 miles during her two-month cruise—was to determine whether man would be able to stand up under the mental and physical strain similar to that which would occur in outer space.

Captain Laning, referring to the marathon cruise as an "inner space" journey, told reporters that "We could have stayed down another 30 days."

The Seawolf's Medical Officer, LCdr. John H. Ebersole, said that the 105-man crew experienced no great psychological problems and at the end of the cruise were in excellent physical condition.

Commander Ebersole said that the only tensions experienced by any of the men were caused by worry over the welfare of their families.

Two of the men aboard became fathers during the trip. About 80% of the ship's complement are married men.

Marines Reactivate Aviation Cadets

The Marine Corps will restore Aviation Cadets to its ranks starting in July 1959.

After that date, pilot trainees will wear Leatherneck officer-style uniforms and be carried on a Corps roster. The Marine Corps will assume responsibility for cadet procurement.

Since 1941, the Corps has acquired its pilots through the NavCad (Naval Aviation Cadet) Program.

Headquarters will begin accepting applications for the MarCad Program in January. Plans call for 307 Marine trainees to be phased during the first year of the program.

The 18-month course will continue to be conducted at the Naval Air Training Command, Pensacola.

To qualify for a MarCad, candidates must be at least 18 and not over 25 years old at the time of application and have completed two years of college (this requirement may be waived for active duty enlisted Marines who qualify through examination).

ments of the Nautilus, Seawolf and Skate, commented: "What we do, can be done by others. This is a sobering thought. It proves that there is no place anymore, anywhere, anyone can hide out."

The Seawolf's sodium-cooled reactor is to be replaced by a pressurized-water cooled reactor next year.

The Navy's fifth nuclear-propelled submarine, USS Sargo, was placed in commission at the Mare Island Naval Shipyard, Vallejo, Calif., 1 October. Her skipper is Cdr. Daniel T. Brooks.

In November, the sixth A-sub USS Skipjack is slated to join the fleet under command of LCdr. William W. Behrens.

LOW COST PROTECTION. USF ESSEX. Originally fitted out in 1799 and built by public subscription the Essex afforded low cost protection for the people of the United States. Carrying 32 guns she gained fame on her famous raiding cruise in the South Pacific from 1812 to 1814.

Eighty years later, NAVY MUTUAL AID ASSOCIATION was founded. The purpose was to give low cost protection to members of the Navy, Marines, Coast Guard, and their families. For SEVENTY-NINE YEARS NMA has continued to provide this LOW COST PROTECTION.

Write us today for our free booklet that will explain the full services and benefits of NAVY MUTUAL AID to you.

ELIGIBILITY. All permanent and temporary officers and warrant officers of the Navy, Marine Corps, and Coast Guard, including reserve officers on extended active duty, and not over 62 years of age, are eligible.

What You Should Know About This Symbol...

It may be new to you now, but you'll see it again and again. It's a symbol of service to government, the armed forces, to defense industry.

For it represents The Singer Manufacturing Company's Military Products Division, a functional team of three well known organizations—Haller, Raymond & Brown, Inc., Diehl Manufacturing Company, and Singer-Bridgeport.

The Military Products Division provides scientists and engineers familiar with government requirements . . . development and production facilities for making systems, products, and components in large quantities, at a practical cost.

It can handle projects from concepts to production, or serve defense industry capably as a subcontractor—in any of three ways—by developing to requirements, building to specifications, or by supplying a product line. Remember this symbol. It can serve you well. The Singer Manufacturing Company, Military Products Division, 149 Broadway, New York 6, N. Y.

Supergrade Plans Told By Navy

As its first board was in session to select petty officers for E-8 and E-9 billets, the Navy announced that new examinations for the supergrades will be given in February and August 1959.

Beginning in 1960, the exams for senior and master chief petty officer will be held annually.

Present plans, the Navy said, call for filling supergrade billets from existing E-7 chief petty officer ranks. Of the present E-7 strength, 19% will be advanced to E-8 and 6% to E-9.

The board, now meeting in the Navy Department, will select the first 300 senior chief petty officers (E-8) and 1,850 master chief petty officers (E-9). Those selected will be advanced to their new grades effective 16 August 1958.

When the four-year supergrade phase is completed in 1963, the Navy expects to have a total of 2,800 E-8's and 8,600 E-9's.

Tyndall Unit Tests New Barrier; Water Squeezer May Replace The Chain

The 4750th Test Squadron at Tyndall AFB, Fla., has completed a test of a new emergency aircraft arresting system being considered as a possible replacement for the MA-1A chain type overrun barrier.

The project was directed by ADC Headquarters and was coordinated with ARDC and AMC.

Emergency arresting systems are used to prevent an aircraft from running off the end of the runway in event of wheel brake failure, aborted takeoff at too high speed to afford a normal stop, or similar circumstance.

This experimental system employs the "water squeezer" principle.

Two steel tubes 1500 feet long, partially filled with water, are buried on either side of the runway. Each tube contains a loose fitting piston. The pistons are interconnected by a cable which runs the length of each tube and stretches across the runway. A Navy-type arresting hook mounted on the aircraft engages the cable, dragging the pistons through the water. The resulting "squeezing" of the water brings the aircraft to a stop.

All American Engineering Company, of Georgetown, Dela., developed the system.

Two Test Squadron F-89D Aircraft equipped with Navy-type arresting hooks were used for the test, at the company's facilities. A total of seven taxi engagements and 12 "fly-on" engagements were made at various landing weights and engaging speeds.

A 100% success rate was experienced.

Project Officer was Capt. George C. Cannon jr. Flight test crews were Captains Will R. Thomas and John R. McLemore, pilots, and Capt. Samuel F. Miller and 1st Lt. James D. Covington, radar observers.

The aircraft were maintained by T/Sgt. Joseph S. Wegmann and Airmen Second Class Jordan M. Hansen, Marion K. Gardner, and Thomas A. Nelson.

Additional maintenance support was given by the 98th F. I. S., Dover AFB, Dela.

Capt. Kelly In F-104 Spot

Capt. Donald E. Kelly has been named as F-104 Flight Commander in the 475th Air Defense Squadron (Weapons), Tyndall AFB, Fla., to succeed Capt. George D. Van Huss, assigned to Richards-Gebaur AFB.

Captain Kelly a veteran of 100 missions in Korea, has more than 2500 jet hours in seven different fighters.

Do you know . . .

AIR FREIGHT

is often cheaper than any other shipping method!

In many cases, you'll find your shipments could go Air Freight for the same or less cost than the fastest surface shipping. And your shipments will arrive in first-class condition, too! Loading is simpler and puts less strain on shipments. The trip is smoother...no bumping, swaying and jarring as with old-fashioned surface shipping methods.

Less crating is needed because cardboard containers are usually acceptable, instead of costly wooden boxes. There's less pilferage, too, because fewer people handle your shipments. And, of course, shipments arrive in hours instead of days or weeks!

Air shipping is no longer for emergencies only. With so many advantages, it fits right into your regular shipping routine.

DEPENDABLE. SCHEDULED SERVICE SAVES MILLIONS OF VALUABLE MAN HOURS FOR THE MILITARY

Sen. (Col.) Goldwater Awarded AFA Honor

DALLAS, TEX.

HONORED for his participation in the Air Force Reserve, Senator Barry M. Goldwater (R-Ariz), a colonel, was awarded a Special Citation by the Air Force Association at its 12th annual convention here.

The award was presented by Peter J. Schenk, AFA President and Assistant to the President of the Raytheon Manufacturing Corporation.

A command pilot, Senator Goldwater holds a mobilization assignment with the Air Defense Command.

In other awards, M/Sgt. Louis J. Rasmussen, 631st USAF Hospital (Res.), San Francisco, was named the nation's outstanding Air Reserve airman for 1958. Selected as outstanding Air National Guard airman for 1958 was M/Sgt. Harry P. Kilpatrick, chief of the armament section of the 138th Fighter-Interceptor Squadron, New York Air National Guard, Hancock Field, Syracuse, N. Y.

The AFA also honored two units—the 349th Troop Carrier Wing, Hamilton AFB, Calif., as the outstanding Air Reserve Wing, and the 175th Fighter-Interceptor Squadron, Sioux Falls, S. D., as the outstanding Air National Guard Unit.

The 349th is commanded by Brig. Gen. Harold P. Little, and the 175th by Maj. John L. Schilt.

The Earl T. Ricks Memorial Trophy was presented to Capt. Clarence Christenson, jr., 173d Fighter-Interceptor Squadron, Lincoln, Neb.

F-100's SET FOR ACTION—Col. Gerald J. Dix, (right), WWII Ace and commander of Shaw AFB, S. C., discusses with Col. Timothy F. O'Keefe, Commander of the 4th Fighter Wing, who will lead his unit of five North American F-100's, details of the 1958 Air Force Gunnery Meet at Nellis AFB, Nev., 15-18 October. Colonel O'Keefe's five planes, their pilots, and support personnel, based at The Seymour Johnson AFB, S. C., practiced for the meet at Shaw's gunnery range.

Correction Of "Dual" Restrictions Backslides

Despite the Bureau of the Budget's letter to THE JOURNAL (see story on first page), all is not lost in the movement to relieve retired officers of the onerous provisions of the so-called dual compensation and dual employment statutes.

The original Budget Bureau approval of the Navy's recommendation that these restrictions be scrapped, although since rescinded as an "error," must have had some substance of backing at the time. One can hardly conceive of the Bureau being entirely mistaken in an action of this magnitude.

Furthermore, Mr. Hughes points out in the last paragraph of his letter to THE JOURNAL (see full text in Readers' Views on this page) that this recommendation was part of the Defense Department's 1958 legislation program and is still under review in the Bureau of the Budget "in conjunction with consideration of related proposals submitted by other agencies." This review, Mr. Hughes promised, "will continue with a view to determining the kind of legislation regarding this difficult and complex subject which the Administration can support in the 86th Congress."

One would gather, therefore, that the matter is far from dead and that concrete action will come in the next Congress. Even if the final recommendation of the Administration falls short of complete repeal of these hampering restrictions, it will serve at least to bring the subject actively before the Congressional Committees, which may then well feel that they prefer to go further than the Administration, as they did in the matter of retired pay.

Such action, together with the renewed interest in a wider and more equitable application of the new pay laws to those officers already retired, not only would improve the status of retired personnel, but also would be a distinct stimulus to all on active duty, for the prospect of retirement under favorable conditions and with a fair income is one of the strongest of career incentives—a point that was strongly emphasized by the Cordiner Committee.

NASA, Lunar Probes, X-15 And Space Research Future

Creation of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration has been marked with such a scrambling of projects and money that one hopes fervently the organizational lines of the new system will stand the strain.

To start with, NASA gets the Vanguard project from the Naval Research Laboratory, including Director John P. Hagen and some 150 civilian scientific employees, but no Navy personnel.

Also to NASA go four lunar probes and their instrumentation, two from the Air Force Ballistic Missile Division and two from the Army Ballistic Missile Agency. But because the Army and Air Force are ready to do the job, the next lunar shots will be made by the Services, probably with the Air Force going first.

NASA also gets three satellite projects previously assigned to the Army Ballistic Missile Agency. These call for putting into orbit two inflatable spheres and a cosmic ray satellite. Who will finally shoot these has not been announced.

Basic research programs in such areas as nuclear rocket engines, fluorine engines, and the million-pound thrust single chamber engine study will be transferred from the Air Force to NASA.

However, the Defense Department's Advanced Research Projects Agency will continue with projects such as anti-missile defense and solid propellants and also with satellite programs for warning, navigation, communications, meteorology, and other "military exploratory space programs." ARPA also will retain its development of super thrust boosters and high energy upper stages.

Fortunately, the North American X-15, which will be rolled-out on 15 October, started as a joint project between the Air Force and Navy, and the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, so it will continue with the NASA taking the place of NACA in the joint project. Other portions of the program to put man into space will be pursued jointly by ARPA and NASA.

As for funds, ARPA transfers $59,200,000 and the Air Force $57,800,000 to the NASA.

How will this new loosely defined assignment of projects and duties operate in practice? The system seemingly aims for administration of civilian projects on one side, military on another, and a combination of the two in the middle. There is NASA, ARPA, the Army, Navy, and Air Force, and there will be soon a DoD Director of Research and Engineering. When asked if he believes this system will work NASA's Director, Dr. T. Keith Glennan, replied, "I am willing to try it." Dr. Glennan seems to think that most of the coordination can be handled on a personal level between Secretary of Defense McElroy, Assistant Secretary Quarles, ARPA Director Johnson, and himself.

Best hopes for the untangling of the lines of authority and the establishment of a sound working system are based on the excellent record of smooth operation and cooperation that existed between NASA's predecessor, NACA, the Armed Services, and industry. Although NASA will be a larger operation and will have functions not handled by NACA, such as procurement, it retains the framework of NACA and thus will have the benefit of the latter's more than 40 years of experience.

READERS' VIEWS

BoB On Dual Compensation

I am writing in connection with an article which appeared in your issue of September 6, 1958, under the heading, "Pentagon Proposes Elimination of Dual Pay Restrictions; President Backs Plan."

This article correctly stated that, as part of a report on a private relief bill, the Navy Department had submitted to the Congress, with the approval of the Bureau of the Budget, a proposal which would exempt retired military personnel from the operation of the so-called dual compensation and dual employment statutes. The purpose of this letter is to advise you that the Bureau of the Budget was in error in approving this proposal and that notification to this effect has been given to the Department of Defense, the House Committee on Armed Services, and the office of Congressman Joel T. Broyhill who introduced the proposal as H. R. 13876. We assume that you will similarly wish to advise your readers.

The proposal submitted by the Navy Department is identical to one which formed a part of the 1958 legislative program of the Department of Defense and which has been under review by this office for some time in conjunction with consideration of related proposals submitted by other agencies. This review will continue with a view to determining the kind of legislation regarding this difficult and complex subject which the Administration can support in the 86th Congress.

IN THE JOURNAL

10 Years Ago—Action by the Navy Department in selecting 288 women for commissioning in the WAVES of the Regular Navy, marks the first step toward the establishment of similar women's units as permanent components of the Regular Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps. The law authorizing such permanent components had the active support of the top war and peace commanders of all the Armed Services and was direct recognition of the efficient and loyal services performed by American women during the war.

50 Years Ago—Plans are under way for the marking of all clothing issued to enlisted men in the Army with the names of the soldiers to whom such clothing is issued. There is no legislation to warrant this action, but the Judge Advocate General has rendered an opinion to the effect that the War Department has ample authority for doing this.

95 Years Ago—The Army of the Potomac still remains inactive on the banks of the Rapidan, like a horse fighting flies in the Summer time, with nothing heavier than guerrillas to occupy its attention.

A Retired Problem

This is a saga of one man's effort to ascertain why, under general provisions, a Retired Reserve Officer can receive both retirement and a salary, and that a Regular Officer cannot.

The Crusade was started for the primary purpose of pointing out the inequality existing between the retired reserve officer and the retired regular officer concerning the subject of Dual Compensation. If I have contributed anything to the benefit of the retired regular officers, then all my efforts have not been in vain.

The story starts back in June of 1957 with letters to the congressmen and Senators of Wisconsin asking for information on dual compensation. Answers were received from only four congressmen to the general effect that "A bill, H.R.1943 of 5 January 1957 had been introduced and is assigned to the House Post Office and Civil Service committee. The measure would repeal the dual employment statute. The bill is pending and as of now no hearings have been scheduled." It is now almost 1 October 1958 or 22 months later and no further news or action on H.R.1943. Why?

After the very general answers received, a letter was written to the Chairman, Senate Committee on Foreign Relations on 2 September 1957 requesting what further I should do in order that I make a formal request that the Dual Compensation restrictions be set aside in the case of Regular retired officers. I quoted from the ARMY NAVY AIR FORCE JOURNAL of 3 August 1957, page 12, "Dual Compensation Restrictions have been set aside by the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations to permit Capt. Samuel Kelly, USN-Ret, to accept a $12,000.00 post as Executive Director of the Corregidor Bataan Memorial Commission. Capt. Kelly would continue to receive his full retirement pay, approximately $7,000.00 in addition to the salary from the Commission."

The answer received from the committee on Foreign Relations dated 1 September 1957 quotes extracts as follows:

a. "The bill to which you refer is S.538, now Public Law 85-179. This was approved by the President on 28 August 1957. The appendix to the bill (pages 4 and 5) contains a statement made by Senator Goldwater, the author of S.538 explaining the employment of Captain Kelly as Executive Director of the Corregidor Bataan Memorial Commission."

b. "H.R.1943, to which you refer, is still pending in the House of Representatives."

c. "Unless H.R.1943 becomes a law your problem is to persuade some member of congress to introduce a bill which would make a further exception to the dual compensation restrictions. The arguments made on behalf of Captain Kelly may be instructive as to the kind of information which would be

Training Cuts Feared By Guard Group, Seeks 10,000-Man Expansion Of Air Units

Fresh from a complete victory over Administration officials who would reduce the strength of the Army National Guard to 360,000, the National Guard Association of the U. S. is seeking a stabilization of Guard strength at 400,000 and an increase in the Air National Guard from 71,000 to 81,000.

In addition, it wants an assurance that 55,000 National Guard enlisted men will be able to participate annually in the Army's six-month training program.

Though funds have been provided by Congress for the full participation of Guard personnel in the six-month training program, Association officials have received no assurance that the necessary training funds will be made available by the Defense Department.

They fear that because the requirement for 55,000 six-month trainees was not spelled out in the Fiscal '59 appropriations legislation, as was the 400,000-man strength of the Army National Guard, Administration officials may not feel bound to carry out the full training program.

Maj. Gen. William H. Harrison, Jr., Adjutant General of Massachusetts and President of the Association, had told Convention delegates in Atlantic City that the National Guard could not maintain its strength only by recruiting persons who have an active Ready Reserve requirement to fulfill. The six-month training program, he said, is necessary.

The Association also recommended that the number of Reserve drill pay billets be increased from 135,000 to 160,000.

Army Lt. Colonel, AF Major Named To Exchange Service By Gen. Parks

Lt. Col. David W. Evans, QMC, USA, has been appointed Acting Chief of the Atlanta Service Center of the Army and Air Force Exchange Service.

He succeeds Col. Vernon W. Huller, reassigned to Ft. Lee, Va.

Announcement of Colonel Evans' appointment was made by Maj. Gen. Harlan C. Parks, Exchange Service Chief.

The Atlanta office at 111 Ivy St., N.E., furnishes technical assistance and support for post and base exchanges operating in the nine-state region of Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Tennessee, Alabama, Georgia, Florida, North Carolina, and South Carolina.

Maj. Stephen Kolvas, USAF, has been appointed Chief of the Oversea Service Center of the Army and Air Force Exchange Service in New York City.

The Oversea Service Center provides technical assistance and support to U. S. military exchanges in Newfoundland, Labrador, and Greenland.

Prior to his new appointment, Major Kolvas was Exchange Officer for a year at Pepperrell AFB, Newfoundland.

Dual Compensation Problems

From preceding page—

effective in your case." (The case in question was the position of Manager-Custodian of Japan Locker Fund.) It is now September 1958 and no action evident on H.R.1943 of 5 January 1957. Why?

As a result of the letter from the Committee on Foreign Relations, a letter was written to Senator Alexander Wiley, Wisconsin. Senator Wiley has been most cooperative in carrying on the battle and has evidenced a true interest in the problem.

After an exchange of letters with Senator Wiley, he informed me in his letter of 4 October 1957 that he had prepared a draft of a bill which he would be pleased to introduce on my behalf in January 1958. Further, quote, "I have contacted the committee regarding H.R.1943 and they advise that no action has been taken on this bill and none is contemplated." The question again is Why?

In a letter of 18 January 1958, Senator Wiley enclosed for my information a copy of S.2945 which he introduced 9 January 1958 to exempt the Manager-Custodian Japan Locker Fund from certain dual-compensation restrictions.

In a number of letters to Senator Wiley requesting the status of Bill S.2945, which had been referred to the Senate Armed Services Committee and submitted to the Defense Department and to the Civil Service Commission, the answers were always, "No reports have been made."

In a letter from Senator Wiley dated 12 August 1958 he advised that he had contacted the Armed Services Committee and they advised that they had received an adverse report from the Department of the Army. Senator Wiley immediately got in touch with the office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Personnel and asked for justification of the decision. Quote answer, "While a retired reserve officer can receive both pension and salary, a regular officer cannot."

After another letter 21 August 1958 to Senator Wiley, taking exception to the "off the cuff" decision and noting exceptions made to the provisions of the Dual-Compensation act, an answer was received in a letter dated 16 September 1958, enclosing a letter from the Department of the Army which is very self-explanatory, quote specific paragraphs.

a. "The Department of the Army, on behalf of the Department of Defense, recommended against the enactment of S.2945. The basis for the recommendation is that S.2945 would only further complicate the already complex problems that exist with respect to the dual employment and dual compensation restrictions."

b. "The policy of the Department of the Army to oppose piece-meal amendments to the Dual Office and/or Dual Compensation statutes is considered sound. As indicated in the report on S.2945 the Department of the Army favors revisions to such statutes to achieve equality between retired officers of the Regular and Reserve Components."

c. "The very few exceptions to these statutes which have been made can be justified, as the laws granting such exceptions were applicable only in those cases where individuals with special talents or experience were needed for a specific position. The granting of exceptions other than in situations referred to above would create further inequities and would be discriminatory."

The question is, isn't the granting of any exceptions discriminatory to all retired regular officers?

When the 87 congress convenes, Bill H.R.1943 "To repeal the dual employment statute and amend the dual compensation statute, and for other purposes," will be two (2) years old, and still not reported out of the committee on Post Office and Civil Service. The question is WHY?? What is holding up the bill? Will it be held up for another two years or more?

If this report has done nothing more than call the attention of the retired regular officers to the current status of the Dual office and/or Dual Compensation statutes, it has accomplished its purpose.

Comptroller Demands Over $10,000 Repayment From 10 Retired Officers

TEN retired Public Health Service Assistant Surgeons General will have to pay heavily for the official errors made in their retirement.

According to the Comptroller General, these 10 officers erroneously were retired in the pay grade of brigadier general under the Career Compensation Act of 1949. They should have been retired, the Comptroller said, in the pay grade of Colonel.

The Comptroller "demoted" these officers to the pay grade of colonel in June. He also said that (they) would have to return to the U. S. all overpayments in retired pay—which could amount to over $10,000 each—made since 1949.

In his latest decision on the subject B-136140, Comptroller General Joseph Campbell steadfastly refused to forgive these officers their debts. They will have to pay the money back, he said.

Sympathizing with the plight of the officers, Mr. Campbell noted that "It is unfortunate, of course, that the erroneous payments were made and that the error was not detected sooner in the audit of these retired pay accounts."

The Public Health Service had asked Mr. Campbell to cancel the indebtedness of these officers, which resulted from conflicting interpretations of retirement laws by PHS authorities and the Comptroller's staff. It is expected that relief legislation will be sought for the 10 officers during the next session of Congress.

Ask Medical Benefits For Nat. Guardsmen

The National Guard Association of the U. S. will urge Congress to provide more equitable medical and survivor benefits for Guardsmen while on or travelling to or from duty.

Voted 1 October at the Association's annual convention in Atlantic City, N. J., a resolution urges swift Congressional action to remedy what it terms "many cases of hardship and inequity" evident under current Federal law.

Specifically, the Association will seek:

- Medical care for Guardsmen who are injured while proceeding directly to or from inactive duty training.
- Disability retirement or separation for National Guard personnel injured while performing or en route to or from full time training duty.
- Hospital care for former members of the National Guard and Reserve component after discharge from military status for physical disability incurred in the line of duty.

Under present law, the Association points out, a National Guardsman's survivors could recover benefits if he were killed going to or from an armory drill. However, the Association says, if he were only temporarily injured while en route to or from the drill, he would not be entitled to any benefits.

Academy Football

Headed by Army's 28-0 win over Penn State, all Service academies turned in a splendid football record for the 4 October games. Academy scores were:

Army 26, Penn State 0

Navy 28, Boston U. 14

Air Force 13, Iowa 13

Coast Guard 12, Norwich 0

Games scheduled for 11 October are: Army at Notre Dame; Navy at Michigan; Colorado State U. at Air Force; and Coast Guard vs. Wesleyan U. at New London.

SECDEF AT OKINAWA. Secretary of Defense Neil H. McElroy is greeted by Lt. Gen. Donald P. Booth, high commissioner, Ryukyu Islands and Commanding General, U. S. Army, Ryukyu Islands and IX Corps. Mr. McElroy, accompanied by his wife and daughter, Nancy, made Okinawa an overnight stop before journeying on to Tokyo.

PERMANENT CAPTAINS

The Air Force this week was preparing to release the names of 3471 permanent first lieutenants chosen for promotion to permanent captain in the Regular establishment.

Last week's issue of The Journal published the names of 2559 Regular captains chosen for permanent major rank, including scores who are now serving in the grade of captain.

The Air Force also is getting ready to announce new appointments under the Augmentation Program, subsequent to approval of recommended lists by the President.

GENERAL NATHAN F. TWINING, JCS, Chairman, and Lt. Gen. O. S. Picher, USAF, Joint Staff Director, are guiding a smooth buildup of the expanded Joint Staff organization. Scores of specially selected officers from all the Services have been tabbed for JCS billets.

MAJOR PROBLEM is not in the Joint Staff, but rather in the individual Services. They are under Pentagon manpower limitations which are not being raised to compensate for the extra JCS spaces.

THE JOINT STAFF will have RAdm. J. H. Wellings, USN, as Deputy Director, with an Air Force officer, Brig. Gen. R. A. Breitwiser, as J-2. He is in line for early promotion to major general. Capt. W. S. Post, jr., USN, a rear admiral selectee, will be Deputy J-2.

THE KEY J-3 BILLET will be filled by RAdm. Frank O'Beirne, USN, who had commanded Carrier Division Three. The Army gets the J-4, J-5, and J-6 posts, to be filled respectively by Maj. Gen. G. O. N. Lodoen, Maj. Gen. D. V. Johnson, and Maj. Gen. James Dreyfus.

MILITARY ASSISTANCE AFFAIRS for the Joint Staff will be under RAdm. J. W. Cooper, USN, with Brig. Gen. M. C. Young, USAF, as Chief of the Subsidiary Activities Division.

THE RANKING MARINE on the Joint Staff is Brig. Gen. L. J. Fields, USMC, who will be Deputy J-5. The Marines are hopeful that future changes will see one of their members given a top "J" assignment.

THE AIR FORCE, which led the fight for Proficiency Pay, will get the $30 per month program off to a fast start when more than 13,000 airmen will receive the new pay beginning 1 November. For a time, it appeared that the Navy, which earlier had announced a 16 November starting date, would be the first. The Army, which said it "would not be left at the post," has told commanders to make preparations for the start of proficiency pay effective 1 November. About 7000 soldiers will receive the $30 payment by next February, with another 21,700 slated for ProPay designation by the end of the fiscal year. The Navy expects to name 20,000 for ProPay this fiscal year. Six thousand Marines are scheduled for the $30 payment; barring a change in plans, no Leatherneck will receive the added pay before January.

HEAVY-HANDED QUESTIONS won light-footed and canny responses from VAdm. Charles R. "Cat" Brown, USN, former Sixth Fleet Commander, during his address to the National Press Club this week. Asked what the United States had accomplished in Lebanon, in view of the present difficulties there, the Admiral smilingly questioned: "Is Secretary Dulles in the audience?" That brought laughter and applause. The next question sought to obtain his views—as a fleet commander—regarding education in the United States. "Is Admiral Rickover here?" Admiral Brown wondered aloud. That brought more laughter and more applause. The Sixth Fleet leader ducked no question that concerned clearly defined military responsibilities.

ALTHOUGH HE EMPHASIZED that he appeared before the Press Club members as a "witness and not as an advocate," newsmen were impressed with the skill in which he presented the Navy's viewpoint to the influential audience. There's no question his presence in Washington will be of great help to the Navy in the work on the fiscal '59 budget.

THE HULA HOOP has been given Pentagon recognition. The Army has issued an announcement that Tommy Bridges, 13, son of CWO and Mrs. John Bridges of Ft. Eustis, Va., kept a hoop spinning for 10,000 turns. "The feat kept him gyrating an hour and ten minutes," the Army said.

ONE OF THE MOST DECORATED Armed Forces medical officers has retired. He is Brig. Gen. L. Holmes Ginn, jr., formerly Commanding General of William Beaumont Army Hospital, El Paso. A graduate of the Infantry School, he holds 11 medals, 11 campaign stars, and 11 decorations from foreign nations. He will reside in El Paso.

MARINE CORPS MAJ. WILLIAM R. GOULD, an Instructor at the Illinois Institute of Technology, has received the Army Commendation Ribbon for service while assigned to the Staff of the CG, U. S. Army Japan. Presentation of the Army medal to the Marine major was made by Capt. Justin A. Miller, USN, Professor of Naval Science.

TENTATIVE PLANS ARE BEING STUDIED for a campaign which would raise funds for construction of an athletic stadium at the U. S. Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs. A Navy-Marine Corps Memorial Stadium drive, begun in January 1957, has surpassed its goal of $3 million to pay for a 29,000-seat stadium now under construction at Annapolis.

A MARINE CORPS ADVANCE PARTY has moved into Vincent AFB, Ariz., to prepare for the transfer of the base from the Air Force on 1 January. Lt. Col. H. L. Lantz, USMC, heads the Leatherneck unit. After transfer of Vincent, the Marine Corps Auxiliary Air Station at Mojave, Calif., will be deactivated.

KILL THE AF in the abbreviated title of the Air National Guard is the suggestion of the National Guard Association of the U. S. The group's convention in Atlantic City recommended that the abbreviation of the Army National Guard be changed from ANG to ARNG, and that that of the Air National Guard be simplified from AFNG to ANG. The AFNG abbreviation, the Association says, is "confusing and misleading."

INTEREST OF SCHOOL STUDENTS in aviation will be enhanced by action taken by the Air Force and the Lockheed Aircraft Corporation. An RC-121 Early Warning Star from the 552d Aircraft Early Warning and Control Wing at McClellan AFB, Calif., has been named "The Spirit of Glen City School." It honors the student body of the Glen City Elementary School of Santa Paula, Calif., who have been made honorary crew members, replete with a special hat and insignia.

THE AIRCRAFT INDUSTRIES ASSOCIATION reports that five aircraft companies spent $1.6 billion in R&D and production costs of civil turbojet and turboprop transports before the first aircraft was delivered. Orders have been received for more than 600 of turbine transports worth about $2.25 billion, excluding $500 million for engines and special equipment. One cost factor is the insurance fee of $2400 to $3000 per flying hour for the first 500 hours of the CAA's certification program for a turbojet.

CHIEF OF NAVAL OPERATIONS BURKE soon will be required to make a recommendation to the Secretary of the Navy concerning names for the Fleet Ballistic Missile submarines. Best guess now is that the Navy will propose that the Polaris submarines be named after states, as was done for battleships. There are some in the Navy who advocate that the vessels be named after cities. Apparently, the latter group includes a nucleus who maintain that more than 50 of these vessels should be built, and hence the Navy would run out of state names, even including Hawaii.

SAC "SPOT PROMOTION" PROGRAM, which affects members of its top crews, will be modified on a "one shot" basis for enlisted maintenance men. At the conclusion of the '58 Bombing and Navigation Competition, about 20 members of maintenance crews supporting the winners of the Fairchild Trophy and the "Best Crew" award will be advanced one grade. Brig. Gen. Horace M. Wade, USAF, Director of Personnel for SAC, emphasizes, however, that the airmen promotions, unlike those given to some SAC officers, will not be on a temporary basis, and need not be vacated when the airmen are reassigned. No promotions will be made to E-8 or E-9. The move is one of many SAC has taken to give greater recognition to maintenance crews.

AN ARMY MARKSMANSHIP EXPERT, Col. Charles G. Rau, who had been Commanding Officer of the Presidio of San Francisco, has become Assistant to the Deputy Commanding General of the Infantry Training Center at Ft. Jackson, S. C. His mission there will be to supervise development of the "Trainfire" system of rifle training. He is the son of Lt. Col. John F. Rau, USA-Ret., 5035 43d Avenue South, Seattle.

A SPECIAL COURSE will be conducted at the Army's Command and General Staff College, Ft. Leavenworth, Kans., beginning 5 January for 30 senior officers of the Republic of China Army. Preparing for this course, 20 Chinese officers have been at Leavenworth translating to Mandarin textbooks and issue material. Aiding the Chinese translators are two U. S. Army officers, Maj. Pat M. Potalivo and Capt. John Turner, both graduates of the Army Language School at the Presidio of Monterey.

THE NAVY'S ATTACK CARGO SHIP USS Mathews recently completed an unusual mission. She carried 4600 tons of cargo to the Pribilof Islands and returned with 78,919 seal skins, 315 tons of seal meat, 895 drums of seal oil, and a quantity of salted seal blubber, worth about $6 million. The cargo also included one male and two female seals. Capt. Fred Chenault, USN, commands the Mathews.

COL. DONALD McB. CURTIS, USA, an Artilleryman who is an expert in ocean navigation and the holder of a CAA private pilot's rating, has become Director of the Logistics Division of the Army Combat Development Experimentation Center at Ft. Ord, Calif. He had been assigned to the JCS Joint Logistics Plans Committee. He was graduated from Princeton in '32 and received a law degree from Harvard in '35.

IT'S AN INTERESTING QUESTION whether the Navy will assign two skippers to the Polaris type submarines. As reported on Page 6, the Chief of Naval Personnel reports that double crews will be necessary for these atomic submarines because the endurance capacities of the boat and/or ship will exceed the limitations of the crewmen. Nothing was said about dual commanders.

Court Criticizes Army Legal Advice

The Army has been taken to task by the U. S. Court of Military Appeals for discouraging persons convicted by court-martial from requesting counsel before boards of review which consider their cases.

Criticized by the Court is Army Pamphlet No. 27-10, "Military Justice Handbook: The Trial Counsel and The Defense Counsel, October 1954."

Advising that counsels should advise the accused whether appellate representation is necessary or desirable, the pamphlet states that "the accused ordinarily would gain nothing by requesting appellate representation."

"The defense counsel should keep in mind," the pamphlet continues, "that unnecessary appellate representation not only wastes the time of the appellate counsel but also tends to lessen his effectiveness in other meritorious cases."

The Army pamphlet, the Court said in U. S. v. Darring, "invites defense counsel to discourage convicted persons from exercising their right to request appellate representation, not in the interest of the particular accused but in those of general expediency and of accused persons in other cases."

In the Darring case, the Court pointed out, the trial defense counsel mistakenly advised the accused as to what he had to lose and not what he had to gain by appellate defense representation.

Army Awards $135 Million For Nike Zeus

A $135 MILLION research and development contract award was made 30 September to The Western Electric Company to continue rapid development of the Nike Zeus anti-missile missile system.

"Component tests of the system already have been accomplished and further development of Zeus is being pursued vigorously," the Pentagon said.

The Zeus will be a third-generation surface-to-air missile system designed to give the United States an anti-missile defense against intercontinental ballistic missiles armed with nuclear warheads.

The contractor team consists of Western Electric Company, prime contractor; Bell Telephone Laboratories, developers; and Douglas Aircraft Company, principal subcontractor.

Some of the major subcontractors are: Goodyear Aircraft Corp., Akron, Ohio; Remington Rand, Univac Division of Sperry Rand, St. Paul, Minn.; Sperry Gyroscope, Great Neck, N. Y.; Radio Corporation of America, Morristown, N. J.; North American Aviation Company, San Carlos, Calif.; Lear, Inc., Grand Rapids, Mich.; Burns and Roe, New York, N. Y., and Continental Can Company, Coffeyville, Kans.

Approximately $21,000,000 of the contract is earmarked specifically for research and development while the remainder is primarily for procurement of experimental supporting equipment and missiles.

It's

Personal

...you understand

Yes, insurance is a personal thing to GPM. It's personal in its protection, personal in its service to your particular needs, personal in its special plans for officers, enlisted men and their families. That's why we have agents and branch offices throughout the country to serve our policyholders better. Our agents are former military people, selected and trained to specialize in military insurance. We think you'll find GPM and its agents ready and able to give you personal service on your insurance needs.

GPM now serves more than 55,000 policyholders with over 177 million dollars of insurance in force. This year, more than $270,000 will be paid out in dividends to policyholders. During our nearly quarter century of service we have paid to policyholders and beneficiaries almost 7 million dollars. Recommended by Best and all other recognized rating authorities.

Col. Benford Of Air Force Succeeds Capt. Avery Of Navy As Publication Agency Chief; Other Service Medical Notes

COL. Robert J. Benford, USAF (MC), a specialist in aviation medicine and former newspaperman, has been named Director of the Armed Forces Medical Publication Agency and editor of the U. S. Armed Forces Medical Journal. He succeeds Capt. Bennett F. Avery, MC, USN, appointed National Coordinator of the Medical Education for National Defense (MEND) program.

Colonel Benford, who served as Staff Surgeon of the XX Bomber Command in WWII, recently completed a tour of duty in the Office of the Assistant Secretary of Defense (Health and Medical).

Since 1955 Colonel Benford has been editor of the Journal of Aviation Medicine, official publication of the Aero Medical Association. He is also a member of the editorial advisory board of Aero/Space Engineering—monthly journal of the Institute of Aeronautical Sciences.

Colonel Benford, a graduate of Creighton University and the University of Nebraska College of Medicine, is a former reporter for the Omaha World Herald. He is the author of "Doctors in the Sky," a history of aviation medicine and other publications in this specialty.

Col. Benford

Lieut. Col. Edward F. Quinn, Jr., USA, former Executive Officer of the 39th Medical Group at Ft. Devens, Mass., has been assigned to Headquarters, Brooke Army Medical Center as Chief of the Plans Branch of the Plans and Operations Division.

Colonel and Mrs. Quinn and their three children live at 242 Brettonwood Drive in San Antonio.

Maj. Douglas Thomas, MSC, is the new Executive Officer to the Ft. Carson, Colo., Post Surgeon, Col. Everett King. The major came to Carson recently from the Ft. McClellan, Ala., hospital.

Capt. Kenneth M. Jensen, USAF (MC), and Capt. John C. Roy, USAF (MC), residents in radiology and orthopedic surgery at New York Hospital and Bellevue Medical Center respectively, have been approved to take "The Pathology of Bones and Joints" course conducted by Dr. Henry L. Jaffee at the Hospital for Joint Diseases, New York City.

Col. John W. Raulston, MC, USA, Deputy Commander of Tripler Army Hospital, Hawaii, is the new Deputy Commander of Brooke Army Hospital on the staff of Brig. Gen. Clement F. St. John at Ft. Sam Houston, Tex.

Colonel Raulston fills the vacancy left when Col. Roland K. Charles became Deputy Commander of the hospital at Ft. Jackson, S. C.

CAPT. ELSASSER HEADS MEDICAL SERVICE CORPS

Capt. Leo J. Elsasser is the new Chief of the Navy Medical Service Corps. He succeeds Capt. Willard C. Calkins, who retired after more than 39 years of active naval service.

Captain Elsasser enlisted in the Navy in 1930 and served as a hospital corpsman in numerous ships and naval hospitals. As a commissioned Hospital Corps officer, he served with a fleet hospital in the Pacific during WW II. He was commissioned in the Medical Service Corps when it was established in January 1955, and to Captain simultaneously with his appointment to head the Corps.

Captain and Mrs. Elsasser, the former Catherine Purcell of Framingham, Mass., reside with their two sons, Paul and Peter, at 4700 Franklin Street, Kensington, Md.

Captain and Mrs. Calkins, the former Maude G. Bayles of Washington, D. C., reside at 4630 Yuma Street, N. W., Washington, D. C. Their son, Willard C. Calkins, Jr., resides with his wife and three daughters in Levittown, Pa. They intend to travel for the next two months prior to announcement of final retirement plans.

Rules For Rated Officer Assignment Are Reported By USAF Headquarters

Lt. Gen. Emmett O'Donnell, Deputy Chief of Staff, Personnel, has told commanders that in the future manning documents must identify specifically positions in which it is "either desirable or essential" that a rated officer be assigned.

General O'Donnell said that positions classified as essential fall generally in two groups:

1. Those directly related to the operation of aircraft wherein an aeronautical rating and current flying status is mandatory.
2. Those which, "in the best interest of the Air Force, should be filled by rated officers on flying status."

The Air Force Headquarters communication said that identification in unit manning documents of positions requiring an aeronautical rating will be considered a major assignment factor along with grade and AFSC.

However, it does not assume precedence over mandatory assignment criteria as outlined in Air Force directives. "Further," said General O'Donnell's statement, "permanent changes of station will not be made to move rated individuals into rated jobs nor will positions be reclassified in unit manning documents merely to fit the qualifications of a particular individual."

The Air Force said that in order to preclude rapid depletion of skill areas in which rated officers are not required, the assignment of rated officers to positions identified as "rated officer requirements" must, in some cases, be made over a period of time.

"Nevertheless," it was added, "to attain full utilization of the current rated officer inventory, every assignment action must be directed toward attaining alignment of this officer resource with established rated requirements. Within this objective, the best qualified rated man available for a particular rated job will be assigned to that position."

Proportionate percentages of rated officer resources will be allocated to commands by USAF Headquarters under the normal quarterly distribution system.

Thus, the assignment of all officers into specific positions will continue to remain the responsibility of the major commander.

"In exercising this responsibility," General O'Donnell commented, "commanders will consider assignment factors for compatibility with requirements in the priority sequence of grade, skill, aeronautical rating and individual preference."

"Careful adherence to the foregoing should provide the Air Force optimum utilization of each rated officer consistent with requirements."

Commanders were asked to "apprise all echelons of their command of the contents of this letter to insure that all assignments comply with the spirit and intent thereof."

STEVE CANYON ADVISOR

The Air Force has assigned a full time technical advisor for the "Steve Canyon" television show, seen on NBC each Saturday night. He is Lt. Col. Frank Ball, who is with the Air Defense Command.

The Air Force and the aircraft industry are according full cooperation to Mr. Milton Caniff, creator of "Steve Canyon," and his associates in the new television venture.

A former Infantryman, Mr. Dean Fredericks, who was seriously wounded in the Philippines in 1944, plays the title role.

Thousands Will Take Supervisory Examination

The USAF Supervisory Examination, passing of which is necessary for promotion consideration to E-8, will be held 13 October-21 November.

Three classifications of master sergeants are eligible to take the examination: (1) those who failed to make a qualifying score when it was given before, (2) those who qualified in the previous test but would like to try for a higher score, and (3) those eligible for the test but who failed to take it during the May-June cycle.

In order to qualify to take the test, master sergeants must have a seven-level AFSC, 24 months in grade, and have 10 years of active service as of 1 March, 1959.

Those master sergeants who already have qualifying scores on the examination may retake the test if they so desire, but are pre-warned that in all instances the score of the most recent examination will be the one used to determine E-8 eligibility.

It is possible, therefore, that an individual already possessing the required qualifying score may become ineligible for senior master sergeant consideration due to later achievement of a disqualifying score.

Army Outlines Plans For Pro-Pay Awards

The Army has initiated an interim and a permanent plan for award of proficiency pay to enlisted men holding critical Military Occupational Specialties.

Under the interim plan, approximately 7,000 EM will be awarded an extra $30 a month between November, 1958 and February 1959. The Army has sent instructions to the field ordering local commanders to begin preliminary action which will permit payments to start next month.

Although the Army has not identified the MOS, which will receive the early payments, it was stated that the awards will be based on criticality. Criticality is based on the length of training time and reenlistment rates. Selection of individuals to be awarded Pro Pay under the interim plan will be made by local commanders on a best qualified basis. The awards will be made to about 50 per cent of the eligible personnel within each designated MOS.

Under the permanent plan, the Pro Pay dollars will be spread from March, through 30 June, 1959. These payments will be made to individuals as a result of MOS proficiency tests administered under the Enlisted Evaluation System.

The first proficiency tests under the Enlisted Evaluation System will be given in January for MOS' listed in Army Circular 611-22.

Those who establish their proficiency on the basis of the January test will begin to receive payments in March.

The long-range Pro Pay plan will be spread over a four-year period. Additional MOS' will be added to the program in the order of their criticality.

By 30 June 1959 the Army will have authorized Pro Pay for 28,000 men.

Col. W. V. Gresham Heads New Hunter AFB Group

Hunter AFB, Ga., has completed its Strategic Air Command Reorganization Plan to accomplish its mission more economically and with fewer men.

Included in the change-over is the re-remaining of the 804th Air Base Group as the 804th Combat Support Group and the formation of two new bombardment squadrons, the 425th and 429th.

Commander and Vice Commander of the 804th Combat Support Group are, respectively, Col. Walter V. Gresham and Lt. Col. William B. Broom.

PALM BEACH TO TINKER

The 1707th Air Transport Wing of MATS will move from Palm Beach AFB, Fla., to Tinker AFB, Okla., between 1 April and 30 June 1959.

The 506th Tactical Fighter Wing at Tinker will be deactivated between 1 December and 1 April 1959.

Departure of the fighter wing personnel will make room for the 1707th, a specialized consolidated training unit for Air Force transport type aircraft. While the majority of the students are Air Force men, the courses are also available to Navy air and ground crewmen and to personnel from friendly foreign nations.

Tinker will remain an Air Materiel Command base.

Altus Crews Named For SAC Contest

Four crews from the 26th and 42d Bomb Squadron have been designated to represent the 11th Bombardment Wing, Altus AFB, Okla., at the SAC Bombing Competition at Castle AFB, Calif., 13-18 October.

Representing the 42d is Maj. James W. Dollar's crew consisting of Capt. Merrill M. Stiver, Pilot; Maj. Donald A. Siewert, Radar Navigator; Capt. George F. Border, Navigator; 1st Lt. Robert H. Allred, Jr., ECM; and T/Sgt. Mack J. Lee, tail gunner; and Maj. James B. Lindsey's crew consisting of 1st Lt. Ray H. Wiley, Pilot; Maj. Frank W. Fuchic, Radar Navigator; Capt. John K. Lonsdale, Navigator; Capt. Adolph R. Mittleman, ECM; and S/Sgt. Gregory Chavez, Tail Gunner.

Representing the 26th are the crews of Capt. John E. Ernest and Maj. Howard B. Norton. Capt. Ernest's crew has 1st Lt. George W. Ervin, Pilot; 1st Lt. Victor C. Simon, Radar Navigator; 1st Lt. Thomas L. Radke, Navigator; 1st Lt. Edward P. Martin, ECM; and T/Sgt. Lloyd B. Tolls, Tail Gunner.

Major Norton's crew has Capt. Jack E. Dennison, Pilot; Capt. Kelcy E. Henard, Radar Navigator; Maj. Max Klein, Navigator; Maj. John K. Palmer, ECM; and M/Sgt. Floyd O. Johnson, Tail Gunner.

Supersonic Parachute Tests Set By AF

Supersonic parachute tests will be conducted by the Air Force at Holloman AFB, N. M., and Eglin AFB, Fla., with the help of a new test rocket nicknamed the "Cree."

Developed by the Air Research and Development Command, the missile will enable engineers and scientists to study the performance of first-stage parachutes for manned aircraft escape capsules, missiles and drones at altitudes between 30,000 and 150,000 feet and at speeds from 1,520 to 3,040 m.p.h.

The "Cree" is a cluster of three test missiles, mounted parallel, and propelled by a ground-to-air missile booster unit. Each of the three missiles will test a separate parachute.

When in flight, two outside units separate from the center booster unit and travel independently about 30 feet apart. Timing mechanisms set off the parachutes which eject backwards through the tails of the missiles, where cameras record the actions of the open chutes.

When the tests are completed the missiles themselves are parachuted back to earth for re-use and study of their filmed information.

MATS Officer Honored

Lt. Col. Walter V. Cook, Assistant Executive to the MATS Commander, has received the Legion of Merit at Scott AFB, Ill., for "exceptionally meritorious conduct in the performance of outstanding service to the United States from July 1954 to June 1958."

Prior to his MATS assignment, he was Operations Staff Officer, Operational Plans Division at USAF Headquarters.

His wife, Jane S. and three children reside at Scott.

Army Begins TV Missile Training

The Army has begun telecasting a two-hour, closed-circuit course in guided missiles between the Army Ordnance Guided Missile School at Redstone Arsenal, Huntsville, Ala., and the Armor School at Ft. Knox, Ky.

Use of TV for missile instruction enables the two training centers to save money by making joint use of expensive equipment and skilled instructors.

Purpose of the course—being transmitted a distance of 280 miles—is to train high-ranking officers in the methods of inspecting missiles at sites throughout the world.

The course deals with maintenance of Sixth Army missiles—Nike Ajax, Nike Hercules, Corporal, Lacrosse, Hawk and Redstone. The telecasts originating at Huntsville, will be sent the first three Wednesdays of each month from now until June.

Lt. Gen. Power Of SAC Will Address NSIA; What's Ahead In The Armed Forces

General Thomas S. Power, SAC CInC, will be principal speaker at the 11th annual National Security Industrial Association Pacific Coast Dinner to be held 20 November at the Fairmont Hotel, San Francisco.

The eighth semi-annual Institute for Army Medical Specialist Corps officers will be held 2-8 November 1958 at the Walter Reed Army Institute of Research. Occupational therapists, physical therapists, and dietitians in supervisory positions from 18 Army medical installations in the United States will participate.

Lieut. Colo. Myra L. McDaniel, Chief, Occupational Therapist Section, AMSC, Second National Symposium on Global Communications will be held 3-5 December at the Colonial Inn-Desert Ranch, St. Petersburg, Fla.

The Association of Military Surgeons will meet 17-19 November at the Statler-Hilton Hotel, Washington, D. C.

From first page—

Defense Department authorities who are in a position to know about the existence of such a study maintained that there is no new all-Service action on proficiency flying.

They pointed out, however, that each of the Services must submit to the House Appropriations Committee a report on "progress" made in eliminating what the Committee calls "abuses" in the field of so-called proficiency flying.

It is inconceivable that the Defense Department, particularly under the new Defense Reorganization, would permit the Services to submit their responses to the Committee without "coordination" at the DoD level.

In the view of the House Committee, proficiency flying pay should be restricted to people "who have a real combat proficiency requirement."

"Those persons who do not meet this qualification should be dropped as rated flying personnel for pay purposes," the Committee stated.

In past years, the Services have succeeded in convincing a majority of the Members of Congress that drastic slashes in proficiency flying would have an adverse effect on combat efficiency.

The point has been made, with success, that senior officers in administrative positions must be ready to assume leadership of combat elements at a moment's notice.

A strong case has been presented that proficiency flying by officers in administrative billets is required in order for them to keep current in formulating plans and policies.

The Cordiner Committee, which looked into the proficiency pay controversy, gave its endorsement to the present policies of the Services.

Hopeful prospect is that the Services, in presenting their reports on control measures which have been taken to prevent abuses, will win a vote of confidence from the House Appropriations Committee.

First, of course, the Services will need to document their case for Secretary McElroy, who in under urgent pressure from the Budget Bureau to make whatever cuts are possible in the Defense budget, without impairing the effectiveness of the Fighting Forces.

If Secretary McElroy does not maintain a solid front with the Services on proficiency flying, the Budget Bureau and the Appropriations Committees both will make new moves.

Allied Air Commanders Honor U. S. Unknown

The first "triple" wreath laying ceremony at the Tomb of the Unknowns took place at Arlington National Cemetery on Monday 6 October.

Lt. Gen. Constantine Margaritis, Chief of Staff, Royal Hellenic Air Force; Lt. Gen. Aldo Remondino, Vice Chief of Staff, Italian Air Force; and Lt. Gen. Hamdullah Suphi Goker, Chief, Turkish Air Force honored the Unknowns.

Host for the United States was Lt.

Gen. Richard C. Lindsay, USAF, Commander Allied Air Forces Southern Europe (SHAPE).

Supervising the ceremony was Capt. Tass Hopson, USAF, Operations Officer of the 1100th Air Base Wing, (Headquarters Command) Bolling AFB. The Honor Guard consisted of 45 airmen from the 1100th Security Squadron, the Air Force Ceremonial Unit stationed at Bolling AFB. Honor Guard Commander was Capt. Irving J. Sobieski, USAF.

Donations Pour In To Army Council For Town Club-Nursing Home Project

AN encouragingly large number of small individual donations" to help defray planning expenses for the Council's proposed combination town club and nursing home in the Nation's Capital is reported by the Army Wives Council in Washington, D. C.

Under the leadership of Mrs. Maxwell D. Taylor and Mrs. Hoy D. Davis, Council President, the AWC is drafting a tentative charter for the "Potomac Post" club.

The home would serve widows and unmarried daughters of deceased Army officers with apartments and other "town club" services provided for retired Army couples and wives and daughters of all Army officers.

Council representatives are surveying members of the 40 affiliated clubs to solicit opinions and suggestions on the "Potomac Post."

A special committee, assigned to work out the details of a proposed charter, is functioning under the direction of Mrs. James Totten. Committee members include: Mrs. Robert F. Evans; Mrs. Kenneth J. Hodson; Mrs. Newell L. Hemenway; Mrs. Taylor, Honorary Council President; Mrs. Davis; Mrs. Jasper Searles and Mrs. Andrew J. Adams.

A full presentation of the "Potomac Post" project will be given at the AWC meeting at Patton Hall, Ft. Myer, Va., at 10 a.m., 5 November.

Mailing address for the Army Wives Council's National Executive Office is Box 9608, Washington 16, D. C.

Top Military Court Protects Cupid From Naval Restrictions In Philippines

THE U. S. Court of Military Appeals with an assist from the Navy Judge Advocate General, has smoothed the path of true love for sailors in the Philippines.

In reversing the conviction of Seaman Apprentice Paul S. Nation, jr., the Court struck down a 1955 regulation by the Commander of the U. S. Naval Forces, Philippines, imposing a long and uncertain waiting period before members of his command could be allowed to marry.

Described by the Court as "broad and unreasonable," the regulation prohibited all members of the Philippine command from marrying without the commander's official written permission. In most cases, the permission could not be granted until six months after a marriage request was submitted, accompanied by documented personal data on the prospective bride and bridegroom.

Seaman Nation submitted the necessary application and documents on 16 July 1956, and noted on the forms that he had known his prospective bride for months. The application was not forwarded to the commander, government witnesses testified, because "it lacked certain enclosures."

After waiting six months and three days from the date of his marriage application, Seaman Nation became married without his commander's written permission. He was subsequently court-martialed for disobeying a lawful general regulation in violation of Article 92 of the Uniform Code of Military Justice.

The top military court, agreeing with a board of review in the office of the Navy Judge Advocate General, set aside the conviction on the grounds that the regulation in question was not a lawful order.

It was, in the words of the court, "so broad and unreasonable that it cannot be used as the basis for this prosecution."

The court noted that the regulation established at least a six month postponement of marriage after a serviceman submits application, and then "there is no assurance that the action will be either expeditious or favorable."

"If a waiting period is believed needful to discourage youthful servicemen from entering into improvident marriage contracts," the Court concluded, "its length ought to have some reasonable relationship to the maturity of the persons involved and purposes to be accomplished."

"For a commander to restrain the free exercise of a serviceman's right to marry the woman of his choice for six months just so he might better reconsider his decision is an arbitrary and unreasonable interference with the latter's personal affairs which cannot be supported by the claim that the morale, discipline, and good order of the command requires control of overseas marriages."

Service Weddings and Engagements

THE Community Chapel at Darmstadt, Germany was the scene 30 August of the ceremony uniting in marriage Miss Gerta Heylmann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. August Heylmann of Wiesbaden, Germany, and Col. Raymond Renola, USA, Chaplain (Capt) John L. Hurd performed the afternoon Catholic service.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose Mrs. Don Hartman as matron of honor and only attendant. Lt. Col. Edward Fancher, USAF, served as best man. Ushers were Lt. Col. Tony F. Perpich, USA, and Mr. John L. Daly, jr., Director of the German American Institute in Darmstadt.

Colonel and Mrs. Renola first met in Darmstadt more than two years ago, when she was employed as a professional model and he was Executive Officer of the V Corps Artillery. The bridegroom, USMA '40, holds a Master of Business Administration degree from Harvard Business School.

Following a short honeymoon at Heidelberg, Germany, Colonel Renola returned to Ft. Leavenworth, Kans., where he has been on the Faculty of the Command and General Staff College for the past year, and where his bride will join him this month.

CORRECTION

THE JOURNAL regrets that, due to the omission of a line in the death notice on HOPKINS in last week's issue, it appeared that Brig. Gen. Jay P. Hopkins, USA-Ret., had died. It should have read: "Died Sanitarium Hospital, Battle Creek, Mich 18 Sept Mrs Jessie Zook Hopkins, wife of Brig Gen Jay P Hopkins of Cassopolis, Mich. Burial at Cassopolis."

Obituaries

M/Sgt. Louis C. Mosher, USA-Ret
Military services were held 3 October at the Presidio of San Francisco Chapel for M/Sgt. Louis C. Mosher, USA-Ret, who died at Letterman Army Hospital.

Died

ADAMS—Died Hampton, Va 30 Sept Lt (jg) John Adams, Jr, USCG-Ret. Survived by his

The Presidio, 29 September at the age of 78. Burial was at the Presidio National Cemetery.

Having entered the Army in 1900, Sergeant Mosher's 33 years' service encompassed many assignments, such as helping rehabilitate the City of San Francisco following the fire of 1906; duty with the Philippine Scouts as a second lieutenant in the Scouts, during the Philippine Insurrection, when he was awarded the Medal of Honor for "outstanding heroism." He was later promoted to a captain in the Scouts and served as Deputy Governor of Davao, P. I., under the command of General John J. Pershing. Before his death, Sergeant Mosher was the second oldest living Medal of Honor winner.

His wife died earlier this year, so Sergeant Mosher leaves no survivors.

Mrs. Frances Bingham Hobson

Mrs. Frances Bingham Hobson, 68, wife of Brig. Gen. William H. Hobson, USA-Ret., died at her home, 1024 San Carlos Road, Pebble Beach, Calif., 5 Oct. after an extended illness.

Mrs. Hobson was a native of Chicago who grew up in St. Paul, the daughter of the late Mr. Frank M. and Emma Prince Bingham of that city, where she was married in 1913 to then Lt. Hobson, USMA '12.

Upon his retirement at the end of WW II, General and Mrs. Hobson moved from their last active-duty assignment as Commanding General of Ft. Benning, Ga., from 1943-46, to Pebble Beach where they have resided in the Monterey Peninsula Country Club area.

Mrs. Hobson is survived also by her daughter, Mary Josephine Hobson of Pebble Beach and 1750 Vallejo Street, San Francisco.

A Requiem Mass was said at St. Angela Church, Pacific Grove, 7 October. Private interment service was held at San Francisco National Cemetery, Presidio of San Francisco, 8 October.

Mrs. Anne Hawkins Howze

Burial services were to have been held Friday, 10 October, at the U. S. Military Academy Cemetery for Mrs. Anne Chiffelle Hawkins Howze, widow of Maj. Gen. Robert Lee Howze, USA, who died at the home of her daughter at El Paso, Tex., 5 October at the age of 87.

Born at Little Rock, Ark., Mrs. Howze's father, brother and husband were all general officers in the U. S. Army, and she lived to see her two sons both become major generals. They are Maj. Gen. Hamilton H. Howze, USA, and Maj. Gen. R. L. Howze, jr., USA. She married General Howze, then a lieutenant, at Ft. Leavenworth, Kans., in 1897, and after her husband's death in 1928, Mrs. Howze made her home at Washington, D. C., until 1954, when she went to live with her son-in-law and daughter, Col. (USA-Ret.) and Mrs. H. Crampton Jones of 3000 Gold Ave., El Paso, Tex. While living in Washington, Mrs. Howze was twice named National President of the Daughters of the U. S. Army.

In addition to her two sons and her daughter and son-in-law, Mrs. Howze is survived by eight grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren.

Low-Cost Missile Target

The Navy and the Air Force jointly are seeking a low-cost, high-altitude, high-speed missile target. The major requirement is that the missile target be inexpensive enough.

Powerful Backing Slated For Family Dental Care; Pentagon At Work On 'Draft' Measure

From first page—

tion in the matter of the Family Medical Care Program.

The AMA has made known that it strongly opposes the budget cuts which have forced the 1 October curtailment of Family Medical Care and which threaten even more drastic cuts next year.

A Defense Department spokesman said the Pentagon is working on a "draft" bill to embody the dental care recommendations made by the Secretary of Defense's Dental Advisory Committee last July. The "draft" measure will be coordinated with other interested agencies and with the American Dental Association.

The draft plan is expected to set up a dental care program which will follow the broad outline of the Family Medi-

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER has appointed 12 Coast Guard officers to the next higher temporary ranks, including one to captain, two to commander, two to lieutenant commander and seven to lieutenant.

The lone Reservist in the group is LCdr. Orland D. French whose advancement is effective from 17 September.

Names of the Regular officers advanced and effective dates of rank are:

To Captain—Kenneth W. Donnell, 1 Oct.

To Commander—Robert O. Bracken, 17 Sept.; and John W. Hume, 1 Oct.

Gen. Dent Gets Key Martin Post; Other Service Retired "Keep Busy"

The Martin Company has named Maj. Gen. Frederick R. Dent, jr., USAF-Ret., as Manager of the Engineering Projects Department in the company's Baltimore Division.

General Dent, who once headed all R & D work at the Air Force's Wright Air Development Center in Dayton, will hold a key spot in Martin's operations management organization. Reporting directly to the chief of the Engineering Division, he will supervise the men who direct and coordinate the engineering efforts on each of the individual weapons systems projects at Martin-Baltimore, including the Navy's four-jet P6M Sea-Master, the USAF TM-76 Mace guided missile, and a number of classified projects.

General Dent, USMA '29, retired in 1957 and has been Vice-President of Electronics Corporation of America since then. In this position he monitored research and development activities and supervised Government marketing and contract management.

He holds a Master of Science degree from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and is also a graduate of the Harvard Business School's Advanced Management Program.

General Dent, married to the former Miss Corra Lynn Robinson and the father of two sons and a daughter, resides at 1114 Gypsy Lane West, Hampden, Md.

WO Robert Resta, USA-Ret., 1175 Tenth Street, San Pedro, Calif., recently returned to Ft. MacArthur, Calif., to direct the 72d Army Band in concert as the highlight of an open house program for retired Army personnel. The 68-year-old bandmaster first came to the San Pedro post in 1932 to lead the 63d Coast Artillery Band, a position he held until his retirement in 1939.

Lt. Col. V. O. Ullman, USMC-Ret., who holds the DFC, Bronze Star and three Air Medals, has retired at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot, San Diego, and will work for Lincoln National Life Insurance Company in San Diego.

Elmer G. Brown, USA-Ret., has been appointed Business Manager of Wagner College, Staten Island, N. Y. Colonel Brown, who has resided in Winter Park, Fla., will assume his duties 15 October. He retired in 1957 after more than 30 years of Army service, most of them as an officer in the Finance Department. Prior to his retirement he was comptroller for both the Washington Military District and Ft. Lawton, Seattle, Wash.

Col. James H. Turner, USA-Ret., former Commander of the Ft. Campbell, Ky., Army Hospital, will become Christian County, Ky., Health Officer. He will reside with his wife in Hopkinsville, Ky.

Col. Zebulon C. Hopkins, 51, USMC-Ret., a pioneer in development of dive bombing techniques, plans to enter the field of electronic computing. He will divide his time between Havelock, N. C., near the Cherry Point Marine Corps Air Station, and his hometown of Dover, Del.

Colonel Hopkins was a member of a hand-picked group of flyers called "Rowell's Circus," a team of stunt-flyers led by the late General Ross E. Rowell, who barnstormed the country in 1932 giving exhibitions of dive bombing.

Marine Corps Retires 39 Regular Officers

INDUSTRY IN DEFENSE

SALUTE "CITIZEN SOLDIER"—The recent premiere in Chicago of the new NBC-TV series, "Citizen Soldier" was saluted at a ceremony attended by officials of the Joseph A. Schlitz Company, J. Walter Thompson Company, Oklahoma Oil Company, NBC, and top Army officials. Shown here, left to right, are President R. R. McCoy of Oklahoma Oil; Col. T. J. Ryan, Fifth Army Information Section Chief; Advertising Manager Francis L. Smawley of Schlitz; Lt. Gen. William H. Arnold, Fifth Army Commander; and Mr. William Decker, an NBC sales executive.

AFA Backs Negotiated Contracts

DALLAS, TEX.

Declaring that the development and production of weapon systems is now hampered by "archaic and time-consuming procurement practices," the Air Force Association meeting here adopted a resolution favoring negotiated incentive-type contracts for defense industry.

Competitively negotiated contracts, it said, can speed up procurement without hurting small business.

The resolution supported "the revision of current weapon system and procurement practices and procedures to include increased emphasis on competitively negotiated incentive-type contracts as a means of reducing the time element while providing proper safeguards to allow small business to continue to make its vital and needed contributions to the national economy and the national defense effort."

Lockheed Gets New Missile T.V. Contract; Aerojet Pushes Infrared Work; Weapons

MISSILE T.V.: The Lockheed Aircraft Corporation at Sunnyvale, Calif., has received an Army Ordnance contract of $58,317 for R&D of a missile borne television system.

INFRARED DETECTION: The Avionics Division of Aerojet-General Corporation, Azusa, Calif., under direction of Vice President J. S. Warfel, is developing an infrared fire control system for the Lockheed F-104 Starfighter. An Aerojet Model S8 Infrared Tracker, mounted on a Naval gun mount, recently succeeded in tracking and recording the orbit of Sputnik III during a sweep across Southern California skies.

MISSILE TRANSPORTATION: The Food Machinery and Chemical Corp., San Jose, Calif., has received a $345,000 Army Ordnance award for development of a lightweight, aluminum vehicle to meet transportation and launching ground support requirements for the Army's missile program.

F-105 SIMULATOR: The Air Force's first full-mission capability electronic flight simulator—for the Republic F-105 Thunderchief—will be built by the Nuclear Products-Erco division of ACF Industries, Incorporated, Riverdale, Md., it is announced by Dr. Marshall G. Holloway, President. A prototype and production model has been started under a $2.3 million contract awarded by the Air Materiel Command.

NIKE ZEUS: Development, production and maintenance of several new guided missile computers for the Nike-Zeus anti-missile Missile Program are included in a $20 million contract awarded recently to Remington Rand Univac Division of Sperry Rand Corporation. Remington Rand will work with Bell Telephone Laboratories for Army Ordnance on this development.

The two firms have been working together on the ground guidance system for the Inter-Continental Ballistics Missile Program for the Air Force.

"The new computer will be a special purpose computer based on modular de-

$10 MILLION FOR H-43s

Kaman Aircraft has received a $10 million "follow-on" Air Force contract for 54 of its H-43B local, air base, crash-rescue helicopters.

The company, which pioneered in the development of turbine helicopters, is producing H-43 helicopters for the Air Force on a previously awarded contract which also amounts to $10 million.

The H-43's will go on duty at air bases in this country and overseas on a 24-hour standby alert. The helicopter has unusual ability to find and bring help to downed aircraft. It can speed to the vicinity of a crash unhampered by rough terrain, fences and lack of roads and bridges. The H-43 will be equipped with hoist, litter racks and a specially designed fire-fighting kit so that it can take effective action when it gets where it is needed.

sign and will be completely transistorized," said R. E. McDonald, manager of Remington Rand's Military Division in St. Paul. "It is expected that the computer will be almost three times as fast as any comparable guidance computers now in existence."

Lockheed C-130's Headed For Australia

The Lockheed C-130 Hercules is headed for duty with the Royal Australian Air Force. Seventy Aussie airmen are at Lockheed's Georgia Division in Marietta preparing for delivery of the first of a dozen of the prop-jets late this fall.

The aircraft will leave in three flights of five, four and three planes from Sewart AFB, Tenn., on the first leg of a flight halfway around the world. Each plane will be loaded with tons of spare engines, electronic equipment and replacement parts, as well as a full complement of military passengers.

While the Hercules are not expected to leave loaded to the limit, each C-130 has a maximum take-off weight of 24,200 pounds. This means the three flights will have a potential gross weight of 745 tons over the 10,000-plus-mile route to the RAAF's Richmond Base in Sydney, Australia, its ultimate destination.

Utilization of maximum take-off weights would make it one of the longest and heaviest airlift logistical operations in history.

USAF Captain Is Cook Sales Manager; New Appointments Told By Firms

William T. Welsh, a former Air Force captain who had been with Raytheon Manufacturing Company, has resigned to become Vice-President and Sales Manager of Cook Electric Company, Chicago. A native of Boston, he attended Northeastern University, Massachusetts University, Lowell Technological Institute and Harvard Business School.

Dr. William O. Wetmore has been appointed as Special Assistant to William L. Rogers, Vice President-Azusa Operations, Aerojet-General Corporation in Azusa, Calif. Dr. Wetmore until 1952 was Head of Materials Engineering Division, Naval Ordnance Test Station, Pasadena. From 1952 to 1956, he was with the Hycon Manufacturing Company and held the position of Vice President and General Manager before leaving this firm. He then served as Vice President-Director of Research and Development of the Hunter Engineering Company for two years before joining Aerojet.

Harvey L. Hellingner has been named Eastern Regional Sales Manager of the Industrial Products Division of International Telephone and Telegraph Corporation. During WWII he served in the Army Signal Corps.

Thomas F. Rocco has been named Aerojet-General Corporate Field Service Base Manager at the Air Force Missile Test Center, Patrick AFB, Fla. Mr. Rocco, who was formerly Aerojet Resident Representative at Patrick, is a WWII Marine veteran.

Olin Mathieson Chemical Corporation has named Frederick B. Lee as Director of the Washington office. A Harvard '29 graduate, a '31 graduate of Harvard Law School, he served four years as an aviator with the Navy.

Wesley H. Peters, an executive of the Four Wheel Drive Auto Co., Clintonville, Wis., has been appointed a Defense Department advisor on Ground Handling Equipment of Guided Missiles. He will serve with an Assistant Secretary of Defense (Research and Engineering) Advisory Group, made up of civilian consultants.

Herbert Hoover, Jr., former Under Secretary of State and an internationally known consulting engineer, has been elected to the Board of Directors of

Hiller Elects Two Vice Presidents

The Hiller Aircraft Corporation of Palo Alto, Calif., has raised two division chiefs to Vice Presidency positions.

New Vice Presidents are the Operations Division Manager, Joseph B. Black, and Finance Division Manager, James T. Dresher.

Vice President-Operations Black has headed Hiller's manufacturing organization since 1955.

Vice President-Finance Dresher came to Hiller in 1956 as Corporate Treasurer and Secretary, having previously held a number of key positions in contracts, cost control, and corporate financial planning at The Martin Company in Baltimore.

Lockheed Aircraft Corporation, Chairman Robert E. Gross has announced.

Clyde W. Kaericher, has been named Director of Administration for Minneapolis-Honeywell's inertial guidance plant in St. Petersburg, Fla. He replaces C. W. Skinner, who resigned to accept a position at the Harvard School of Business. Among the important guidance and navigation systems under development at the Florida plant is the system for the Martin Company's Dyna-Soar space vehicle.

AF Ups Overhaul Time On The J-57

The Air Force has increased the time between overhauls on Pratt & Whitney Aircraft J-57 engines powering the Boeing B-52 intercontinental bomber and the KC-135 tanker-transport.

A technical order revision extends the overhaul time on B-52 engines from 1,000 to 1,400 hours and increases the time on KC-135 engines from 800 to 1,400 hours.

The increase in time between overhauls was the biggest given the J-57 engine by the Air Force since it went into the prototype of the B-52 in 1951. By 1954 overhaul time had been set at 500 hours. In 1956 the interval was set at 800 hours and last March it was extended to 1,000 hours.

AC Spark Plug Makes Top Appointments

Five new executive appointments at The AC Spark Plug Division of General Motors are announced by Martin J. Caserio, Manager of Milwaukee operations. Jack G. Briner, Purchasing Director, became Director of Field Service.

Joseph Holland, Director of Field Service, became Special Assistant to the Works Manager.

S. Jack Demorest, Special Assistant to the Works Manager, became Special Assistant-Beryllium Gyros.

Michael P. Lauret, Contracts Manager, became Director of Purchasing.

Alvin B. Goodspeed, Business Manager of New Weapons Systems became Contract Manager.

Mr. Briner during WWII was with the Army Engineers as an engineer for construction of B-29 bases in the Pacific. He received a commendation on Guam and the Bronze Star at Saipan in 1945.

Mr. Holland was made Military Sales Manager in 1955 and became Director of Field Service in 1957.

Mr. Demorest, the first employee at AC-Milwaukee when the plant opened in 1948, has been with General Motors since 1926 when he started as a student engineer with Buick Motor Company.

Mr. Lauret has been contracts manager of AC-Milwaukee since 1953. He had been with AC Spark Plug in the audit, contract and costs departments at Flint from 1943, until moving to Milwaukee in 1953.

Mr. Goodspeed became general supervisor of contracts in 1955.

He was with the Marine Corps in WWII.

Sperry Microwave Develops "Search" Meter

Development of a portable power density meter for survey of high-energy fields near powerful microwave devices has been announced by Sperry Microwave Electronics Company, Division of Sperry Rand Corporation.

The new device now in production, is a simplified "search" meter that directly measures power density of high-level microwave fields. It is designed to meet the needs of military and civilian radar operations for a compact, lightweight instrument to replace bench-type power meter set-ups heretofore carried on test carts to explore the concentration of energy around high-power microwave devices.

Battleships May Become Missile Monitors On Great Lakes

to thwart a massive attack and then to make available additional firepower for naval task forces.

Once the Missile Monitors have served their initial purpose, the ships would proceed from the Great Lakes, through the Saint Lawrence Seaway, and out to the ocean where their power could be added to the Navy's Striking Fleet.

If the plan is adopted, the Navy spokesman said, the first Missile Monitor could be in position on the Great Lakes by 1965.

The long-range goal is to have three converted battleships assigned to each of the Great Lakes.

Under the plan, the Missouri, Iowa and New Jersey would be the first BB's converted to MM's. They would be assigned to Lake Erie, Lake Huron and Lake Superior.

As nuclear-powered destroyers are added to the Fleet, they would be able to supplement the giant MM's. The Navy announced award of a contract for design of the first nuclear-powered guided missile frigate on 25 September.

The DLGN, to be built at Bethlehem Steel Company's Quincy, Massachusetts yard, will have twin Terrier missiles mounted fore and aft in addition to anti-submarine weapons and conventional armament. She will be 556 feet long, have a 56-foot beam and displace 7,600 tons. As Talos missiles become operational they will be added to future DLGN's.

The Navy spokesman explained that what is being attempted is formulation of fast-moving, hard-hitting task forces which can be employed either on defense or on offense. As DLGN's come into existence, their power could be added to the Great Lakes Security Force. Following the initial assaults by the enemy, they would move out to sea where they would join the Offensive Fleet.

As the plan advances, THE JOURNAL

Army Navy Air Force Journal 31
11 Oct. 1958 (Vol. 96, P. 183)

was told, the Navy will explore the possibility of redesigning its Missile Monitors from the keel up. It was pointed out that the advent of nuclear-powered surface vessels, coupled with recent advances in propeller design, will force the Navy to apply radical structural changes to the configuration of its hulls if high-speed surface ships are to become a reality. The supercavitating screw, wedded to atomic power, is seen as providing the Navy with task forces capable of operating at speeds of 50 to 60 knots. "This will give us a wonderful opportunity to pick off their ships piecemeal."

L. H. Benzing has been appointed to the new post of Assistant to the Vice President for Operations at Stavix Engineering, Incorporated, Plainfield, N. J. He was formerly Air Force Contract Representative.

He received the B.S. degree in Engineering from the U. S. Military Academy and the M.S. degree from Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Prior to joining Stavix in 1955, he was Group Electronics Officer with the Strategic Air Command and later handled contract management and engineering development of advanced electronics systems at Wright Air Development Center.

The model, a miniature copy down to the last rivet, was made by engineers and technicians at the Reynolds Metal Company Missile Plant in Sheffield, Ala., and presented by Mr. Clarence F. Manning, (right) Vice President of Reynolds Metals Company.

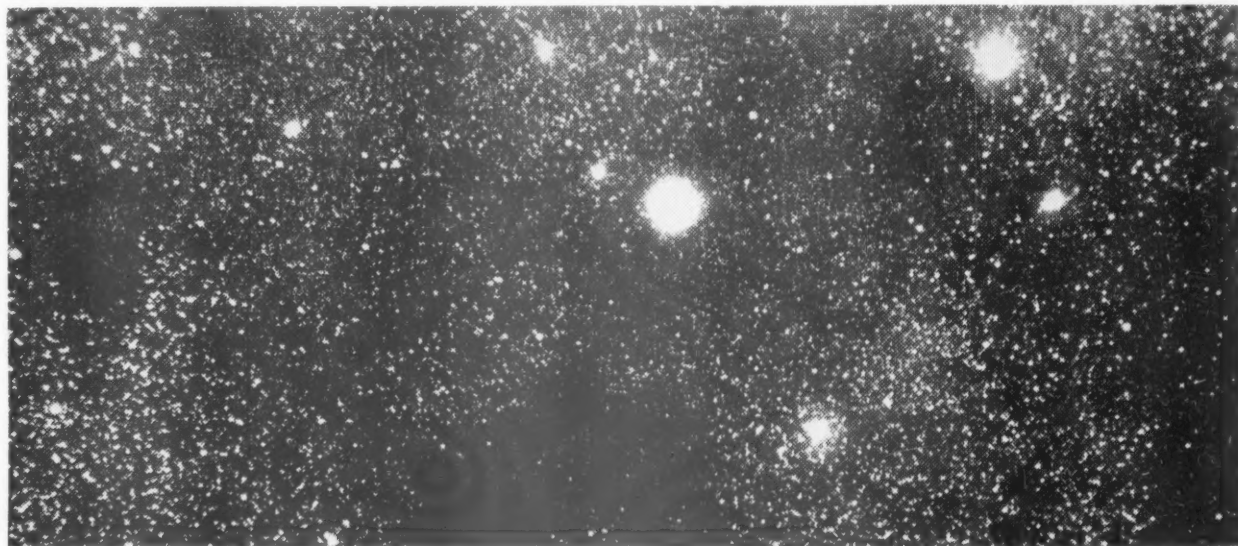

Solar Generators Will Aid Mine Destruction

Solar Aircraft Company of San Diego is building gas turbine-powered pulse generators to be used by the Navy to provide power for destroying mines.

France Q. Wilson, Solar Manager of Turbine and Control Sales, said the generators will be powered by two 500 hp Jupiter gas turbine engines and will be installed in minesweepers being built by the Tacoma, Wash., Boatbuilding Company.

Magnetic mines are designed to be activated by passing ships. The mines are exploded harmlessly by means of magnetic fields set up by the pulse generator's current in a long cable towed behind the minesweeper.

Solar pulse generators powered by single Jupiter turbine engines are now in use aboard Navy minesweepers. The new units, utilizing the two engines connected jointly to the generator, will provide greater current for setting up a larger magnetic field.

FROM BEYOND THE SKY TO BENEATH THE SEAS

In the field of communications, two extraordinary events have occurred within a short span of time. One was the linking of Europe to America by the submarine telephone cable. The other was the sending of radio signals from U. S. satellites in outer space.

Both achievements depended on developments from Bell Telephone System research. The cable was made possible by the development of long-life electron tube amplifiers which are able to withstand crushing pressure on the ocean floor. The satellites derive their radio voices from transistors—products of basic research in semiconductor physics.

All of this basic research is done for the Bell System by Bell Telephone Laboratories. Here, over 3000 professional scientists and engineers explore and develop in physics, mathematics, electronics, chemistry, mechanical engineering, even biology—in every art and science which can help improve electrical communications.

Through this work at the Laboratories, the Bell System has helped make your telephone service the world's finest—and will keep it so.

Aero Commander means business

Men who know aircraft from drawing board to flight appreciate the skills and facilities which build Aero Commander

Our business is building fine airplanes. The world-wide respect for Aero Commander and its unparalleled performance records indicates that we know our business.

But knowing the business of flying, at Aero Design & Engineering Co, reaches even beyond producing the world's finest light twin transport. Our competent research staff deals constantly and successfully with finding answers among the endless complexities of modern electronics, aeromechanics and aeronautics. And our engineering staff converts conclusions into realities.

Add to these human factors the advantage of one of America's best-equipped and most versatile manufacturing facilities and you have the whole answer: Aero Commander Means Business.
